Introduction

An invitation letter for marriage is a letter addressed to a person in order to ask for his or her presence in the special occasion of marriage. The letter is written in a total formal way and after receiving the letter one gets to know or understand how important or special he or she is for being remembered and invited to the ceremony. The letter is written, showing full gratitude and a sense of excitement for the presence of the person to the event.

Invitation letter for marriage Tips

Some tips for writing a good invitation letter for marriage:

- The first and the foremost thing one must keep in mind before writing an invitation letter for marriage is that the letter must properly express the importance of the recipient to the special event and proper excitement must be shown for getting the opportunity to invite the person, full expressed in a formal manner.
- The letter must be addressed particularly to the person who is going to be invited to the event, clearly mentioning about all the details of the ceremony.
- The letter must be checked once again after writing, for any kind of discrepancies in the writing.
- The letter must be closed, showing proper respect and a sense of gratitude to the person, to whom the letter is being addressed to.

Subject: Invitation letter for marriage

Dear _____, (name of the recipient)

It is a huge honor to invite you to the upcoming marriage ceremony of my youngest brother XYZ to her fiancé ABC. The marriage event is going to be held on DEF at PQR PM at the MNO marriage hall just a minute far from our place.

We would be really happy if you come here by three days before the date of the marriage event. We eagerly want that you take part in all of our pre-marriage activities and you'll get a good time to speak with couple and see how they have grown up, since the last time you witnessed them.

We hope that it is a positive answer from your side.

Thanking You,

Yours Truly
